

Alberta Police Cognitive Ability Test (APCAT)

The only written test applicants must take is the Alberta Police Cognitive Ability Test (APCAT). This is a job-related written exam of approximately 3 hours in duration. The test consists of 120 multiple choice questions, and the passing grade is 84 out of 120 (70%).

There is no limit to the number of attempts. Minimum wait periods after a failed attempt are as follows:

- ❖ 1st failed attempt – Applicant must wait 1 month before re-writing,
- ❖ 2nd failed attempt – Applicant must wait 3 months before re-writing,
- ❖ 3rd failed attempt – Applicant must wait 6 months before re-writing, and for all future attempts.

If you are successful, the APCAT results are valid for 5 years.

Exam Help

The APCAT is a general knowledge multiple choice exam that examines cognitive ability and one's potential to successfully complete police recruit training and to perform effectively as a police officer in the Province of Alberta. The APCAT does not measure your knowledge of a particular subject, but rather your ability to think and reason. The questions asked measure 5 different areas, including:

1. Judgement
2. Observation skills
3. Learning/memory
4. Written communication
5. Problem analysis
